A strong feeling of indignation was evident, and many were of the opinion that Judge Lynch should have ended the affair, but others thought there was room for doubt as to the guilt of the prisoners in jail, and that mob law had better not prevail for fear of doing an injustice in the

THE PHISONERS CLOSELY GUARDED.

Many persons upon entering the town loitered about the jail, hoping to get a look at the prisoners, but Sheriff Middleton had the gates and doors securely fastened and would not even permit the town bailiff to enter the sacred chambers of the little prison. There was $1,000 reward offered for the apprehension of the murderers, and no one engaged in the investigation, with the exception of the sheriff, brothers were in town early in the morning, and one talked to Sheriff Middleton while the other talked to the Baltimore detective.

"I wonder who is going to get the reward?" was the question asked by many persons on the street, and it was generally admitted that there would be so many claimants that when the question of reward was settled no particu-

There is a feeling among the superstitious colored ones about here that Vermillion's ghost walks about the bridge, at night and many of them would not cross the bridge alone after dark for all the money in the Bank of England.

While the prisoners in the jail were anxiously awaiting the action of the court, and while Barber and Pinkney were offering up silent prayers for themselves, the band played all sorts of tunes through the streets, and had to make many a sudden stop because of frightening horses.

Just opposite the jail is a large building in which there is a salcon and bowling alleys, and there a large crowd had congregated when and there a large crowd had congregated when the band arrived. After playing inside the building Leader Gus Brow started another

Their action was commented upon by the farmers who heard the music, but that made no difference with the musicians for the next tune they selected was "Dixie," and before getting out of the prisoners' hearing they played the music of that old familar hymn, "I'm Going Home."

the town and in it are the suspected murderers of the late Frank M. Bowie. The jail is a twostory brick structure and is between the rail-road station and the court house. A high whitewashed fence incloses the yard and during times of excitement attending a murder trial some one is constantly on guard. The little square brick structure was erected in 1866, and since that time but very few executions have taken place. Soon after the fail was built four of the negroes implicated in the murder of Col. Lyles, near Piscataway, were executed and sev-eral years afterward a colored woman was hanged for poisoning a family of children near Beitsville. Her name was Mary Wallace. In the meantime, however, a fifth colored man implicated in the marder of Col. Lyles was captured in Boston and he too was hanged.

That was four years after the commission of the crime. The mutder of Col. Lyles was a brutal affair, the motive of the crime having been robbery. So it is that when one in The suspected mex.

Washington writes a letter the missive is mailed with the proud knowledge that in its receipt, transportation and delivery it will receive the benefit of the best efforts of American ingenuity

The collection of the mail is the simplest part of the matter, the hundreds of carriers emthe mail from the thousands of boxes distrib-uted throughout the District at stated hours during both the day and night and the eighteen postal stations situated in the District forward-ing to the main office the mail matter deposited with them. Of these stations the East Capitol with them. Of these stations the East Capitol station is the largest, being supplied with thirty carriers and furnishing 70,060 people with postal facilities. The next important station is the one in Georgetown, which is also supplied with carriers, as is the one situated in South Washington. Each of these three stations are, to a certain extent, independent post offices, the East Capitol and Georgetown stations in one instance forwarding mail direct to the train.

Mail matter addressed to persons outside of the District, and, indeed, all mail received at often, and so the chance of the farmers to be sociable is taken advantage of on all such occasions.

These machines are used to both cancel the stamp or stamps upon the matter and also to postmark or fix the hour of the receipt of the mail at the office. The machines are run by electricity and the letters are fed to the machines by an operator, the first having a capacity of from 22,000 to 25,000 pieces an hour and the second a capacity of about 3,500 an hour. The greater capacity of the first machine is due to arranged, while in the latter case the machine can be fed from the dump or just as the mail matter is deposited in the office. Every half hour the figures marking the time of the re-ceipt of the mail are changed, so that the actual within less than 30 minutes. The great importance of this is most obvious, and in the courts in trials of both criminal and civil cases it has been found to be of inestimable value.

Hand stamps are also used to cancel and postmark mail matter, their use being absolutely necessary in view of the rather lamentable fact that there are not a few persons who delight to put the necessary stamps on their letters in other than the upper right hand corner. These hand stamps are also necessary to stamp and cancel other than first-class matter, such as newspapers and merchandise, which matter cannot, of course, be fed to the stamping machines. With the hand stamps a fair average is 2,000 pieces an hour, although there are men in the office who can "hit" from ninety-five to 110 pieces a minute, it being impossible, however, to keep up such a rate of speed for any length of time.

Duplicate Payment of Taxes.

The Commissioners received yesterday from the leading business men of Washington the petition heartily indorsing the article published in Tee Evening Star relative to duplicate payment of taxes. The article in question sets forth the immense amount of red tape that had to be gone through with before refund was made of taxes paid in duplicate. The article also set forth the views of the collector of taxes and the assessor, which were to the effect that refund should be made with as little delay as possible after application and presentation of satisfactory proof. The petitioners urge the favorable consideration by the Commissioners of the following:

Jes' w'en spring cleanin' comes aroun' Bring forth the duster an' the broom, But rate yer force, notions down. But rake yer fogy notions down An' sweep yer dusty soul of gloom.

Sweep ol' idees out with the dust
An' dress yer soul in newer style,
Scrape from yer min' its worn-out crust
An' dump it in the rubbish pile.
Sweep out the hates that burn an' smart,
Bring in new loves serene an' pure,
Aroun' the herth-stone of the heart
Place modern styles of furniture.

Clean out yer morril cubby-holes,
Sweep out the dirt, scrape off the scum;
'Tis cleanin' time for helthy souls—
Git up an' dust! The spring hez come!
Clean out the corners of the brain,
Bear down with scrabbin' brush an' soap,
An' dump o' Fear into the rein' An' dump o' Fear into the rain, An' dust a cozy chair for Hope.

Clean out the brain's deep rubbish hole, Soak ev'ry cranny great an' small, An' in the front room of the soul Hang pootier picturs on the wall. Scrub up the winders of the mind, Clean up, an' let the spring begin; Swing open wide the dusty blind An' let the April sunshine in.

Plant flowers in the soul's front yard. Fight howers in the soul's front yard,
Set out new shade an' blossom trees,
An' let the soil once froze an' hard
Sprout crocuses of new idees.
Yes, clean yer house an' clean yer shed,
An' clean yer barn in ev'ry part;
But brush the cobwebs from yer head
An' sweep the snow-banks from yer heart!
